Subminimal is omnipresent. Subminimal is what we feel.

Subminimal is what we sophisticate.

This release should help during the introspection which commence a dialog with ourself. Indeed, the question of our intrinsic self is very intractable. The philosophy discusses several topics about the sophistication of our self very disputed.

Does the Human has an intrinsic self, that is independently constituted by our society or is the intrinsic self an effigy of the established society the individual is acting in.

My thesis is that the human has an intrinsic self, that we can't consciously access. This self I call it the individual creative capability.

The problem we have is the access of this capability, of that we can fail. This process requires to turn off the consciously cognition and needs to turn on the unconsciously cognition.

If this process succeed, we are able to deflect the creativity in an emotion we can and should attend, because creativity is what we are.

Subminimal is dividable in two parts. "Sub" the subordinate, a meta-level or a unconsciously room. "Minimal" refers to the reduction of your consciously thoughts to its minimum, to reach the unconsciously meta-level.

This makes Subminimal to a valuable treasure we need to explore.
